TER Lajes, Açores

"August 24, 2001. 6:26 am.
Flight TS-236. East Atlantic.
306 people on board.

Our A330 has run out of kerosene. Both our engines have stopped. Our only hope: Glide to the Lajes military base in the Azores.

We're coming in too fast, too high.
After a 360°, we will now have to make some turns to slow the aircraft down.

We're going to have to do the impossible..."

NOTE: Ice Brakes Module
There is no actual ice on the landing strip here, but you'll need a much stronger braking system to perform an emergency landing.

"Welcome aboard, fellow pilots!"

It's time to test your skills and land your plane at the Paris-Charles de Gaulle airport... But be careful, the conditions are difficult today.

Powerful winds are sweeping the French capital, and air traffic is very dense. A bit of a baptism by fire for the Intern who will be joining you on this flight. Are you up to the challenge?
